21 (WF).—The economy expanded at a nee months than in any quarter since the nent of Commerce said today. The rate of i that the rate of inflation in the same ugh June, was only 2.1 percent, the lowest except the one affected by last year's freeze. Labor said in a separate report that con-sumer prices rose only 0.1 percent last month, that food prices rose only 02 percent, seasonally adjusted, and that wages rose faster than prices. Prices rose sharply on the New York Stock Exchange after the GNP growth was amounced The Dow Jones industrial average rose 10 points. The numbers were good news for the Nizon administration: These are extremely good numbers," said an emberant Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers. "This is the best combination of economic numbers released on one day in this decade, I will not say in the Christian era." He said that they "confirm the picture of a vigorously rising economy with a declining rate of inflation and rising real incomes for workers," and probably hastened the day when wage and price controls can safely end.

Progress on Controls Mr. Stein said that he did not mean to suggest that the conage to 7.4 trols will come off soon, but said s. includthat "we do seem to be making progress toward conditions where it will be possible to eliminate controls" without a new surge in servants.

The department said that it went up at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 112 percent in the quarter, which put it at an an-mal level of $1,139 billion. The quarter increased the likeli-hood that the administration will. hit if not surpass its targets for the year, which are a rate of real growth of about 6 percent and a rate of inflation, as measured in the GNP; of somewhere between 3 and 3.5 percent.

According to revised estimates made public today, real growth in the first quarter was at an annual rate of 65 percent, and inflation ran 5.1 percent.

For the first two quarters combined the rate of real growthon which the administration is counting to create new jobs and cut down on the unemployment rate-was more than 7.5 percent, and the rate of inflation about 3.5 percent.

The unemployment rate, like the rate of inflation, is all but certain to become a major issue in the fall political campaigns." set last year by Corrie Abbelsar of the Netherlands.

The fastest time across the Channel was from France to England in 1964—nine hours and 35 minotes by Barry Watson

Meanwhile, American Dick Crowell of Westport, Conn., gave up his attempt today to swim the Channel after being in the water almost three hours. Crowell, who also is 15, swam through dense fog for five and a half miles before abandoning the swim due to stomach cramps.

and military sources have disclosed that, in an effort to clear away enemy-controlled forests in South Vietnam, the United States attenuted to set huge fire storms there during 1966 and 1967. The project was abandoned, the sources said, because the moist forests would not burn.

The project was undertaken with the collaboration of fireprevention experts from the U.S. Forest Service. They were detached from the service's forest fire laboratory in Missoula and, according to some reports, from range experiment station in California. In the final attempt, called Operation Pink Rose, an area about the size of the city of Philadelphia was defoliated and bombarded with magnesium incendiary bombs in the Iron Triangle region northwest of Saigon. This is an area where Viet Cong influence has never been elimi-

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP), -President Nixon said today that, in agreement with the Saigon government, the United States has proposed "new and generous terms to the other side which could bring about an end to the fighting" in Indochina.

"Thus far, the leaders of Hanoi have refused to discuss these proposals or the earlier proposals which our two governments have put forward at Paris," he said in a formal exchange of remarks with South Vietnam's new ambassador, Tran Kim Phuong. The new South Vietnamese envoy presented his credentials to the president at a simple White House ceremony. Mr. Nixon apparently was referring to his May 8 proposal when he spoke of new and generous terms. This proposal calls for the release of American prisoners and an internationally supervised cease-fire. The United States would agree to remove all of its forces in Vietnam within four months of the cessefire and would halt combat activities throughout Indochina at the same time.

Nixon's declaration that the North Vietnamese had refused to discuss proposels covered the resumption of the Paris peace talks on July 13, the meeting of Henry A. Kissinger with Hanoi's special Polithuro adviser, Le Duc Tho, Tuesday and the second meeting of the resumed Paris sessions yesterday.

Later, President Nixon went by helicopter from hot and smoggy Washington to his mountaintop Maryland retreat with former Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally, presumably to discuss an as-yet undisclosed special assignment the chief executive wants the former Democratic cabinet member to undertake. Accompanying Mr. Nixon and Mr. Connally was the White House chief of staff, H.R. Halde-

26 Bombings in Belfast Kill 13, Mostly Civilians

120 Injured In Attacks Laid to IRA

BELFAST, July 21.—More than two dozen bombs exploded within 90 minutes in Belfast today, killing at least 13 persons and injuring more than 120, the British Army said. It reported that three soldiers had been killed and blamed the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

"Belfast is nothing more than a disaster area," a police spokes-man said. He reported that 52 of the injured were women and

The day's deaths raised to at least 462 the number killed in three years of sectarian violence in Northern Ireland and 56 since the end of a two-week truce by the IRA 12 days ago.

The 26 bombings, the most to hit the city in one day, brought immediate calls from the Protestant majority for new measures against terrorists, "The time has come for yesterday's strong words to be put firmly into action," said Capt. John Brooke, chief whip of the Unionist party.

In London, political sources said the IRA attack had undermined concillatory policies being pursued by the British gov-

"If any further proof was needed of the failure of the government's initiative, this is it," he added, referring to cease-fire talks between the British government and the IRA.

Only Civilian Targets The bombings in Belfast today had only civilian centers as their targets. At least two bridges, three bus stations, two railway stations, many stores and a puh were attacked.

The bombings began in mid-afternoon, when the city center was at its busiest. The first 10 explosions came at a rate of one a minute. Then there was a brief lnll, followed by more bombs. The worst single incident was at the Oxford Street bus station, where six persons were believed to have been killed. Two women were killed by a bomb in a cooperative supermarket on Belfast's western outskirts. Cooperatives have been a tradiolic-based IRA, which says their management is a Protestant monopoly. A spokesman for the British administration in Northern Ireland said: "All these bombs were deliberately placed at public places with one intention—to slaughter and to maim. This is how the Provisional IRA opertional target of the Roman Cath-ates." The Provisional seeks to eject the British and merge Northern Ireland with the overwhelmingly Catholic Irish Republic to the south. The worst previous bombing in Belfast killed 15 persons, including two children and three women, in a bar on Dec. 5.

In a terrorist incident early this morning, a freight train was derailed by a mine on Northern Ireland's main line. The locomotive and 10 cars plowed off the line that links the province to Dublin when the mine was detonated near Lurgan, 20 miles southwest of Belfast. No one was injured.

Army engineers found another mine on the line nearby.

"We must not allow anybody to convince us that the United States bas no way of exerting pressure on Israel, because that "General [Moshe] Dayan himself recently admitted that what he dreaded most was the possibility of the United States exerting pressure on Israel in order to have her withdraw, because in that event. was that all categories of the 18,000 to 20,000 Soviet military men in Egypt were affected by Mr. Sadat's order Tuesday that Soviet "advisers and experts" be withdrawn immediately. Most of the approximately 4,000 Soviet advisers to Egyptian units were believed to have left the country already with their families while about 12,000 members of regular Soviet units stationed in Egypt were reported to be about to

Only a few of the 2,000 highly specialized Soviet technicians were understood to be staying in Egypt, and they will be under Egyptian command, the informants said.

The consensus among informed sources here was that Mr. Sadat had acted in response to pressure from leading army officers including Gen. Mohammed. Sadek, the minister of war, and Lt. Gen. Assad Shazli, the chief of staff. The army officers' frus-tration with Soviet military policies was reported to have reed a boiling point earlier this summer when the Russians did not deliver weapons on the date that the Egyptians thought they had agreed upon.

Long-Standing Anti-Red But informed Egyptians stress the president basic and longstanding anti-Communism and assert that he needed no persuading to make his move. The image reported in the West of a civilian president being forced ly the army into a basis policy reversa, is an over-simplification, these Egyptians say. Similarly, it is felt here that the discontent expressed earlier this year by anti-Soylet rightist civilians wes not a major element of pressure, but on the contrary had been trated by Mr. Sadat.

Foreign diplomats here tend to link the timing of the break to the "Gth anniversary of the nationalist Egyptian revolution led by Gamal Abdel Nasser. A day later, July 9, Hafez Assad, President of Syria, arrived here nnexpectedly straight from Moscow, where he had been on a state visit. During his 24-hour stay here, he met twice with Mr. Sadat, opparently in an attempt to smooth growing difficulties in Egyptian-Societ relations.

A rumor that Mr. Sadat's decision to remove the Soviet advisers was at least partly inspired by assurances of support from Washington is not taken seriously by informed Egyptians. The rumor had its origin in a visit here by Sultan Abdul Ariz, the half-brother of the ruler of Saudi Arabia, just before Mr. Sadat made his decision to expel the Russians. The sultan had just returned from a visit to Wash-

The president's move, according to all accounts, has been highly popular with the broad mass of Egyptians, who seem to feel that weight on their national pride has been lifted.

The prevailing feeling among informed Egyptians now is that Mr. Sadat's thinking on policy rust be in terms of diplomatic or political action-not in terms the one with Egypt. The treaty, signed in Baghdad in April during a visit by Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, went into effect yesterday at a ceremony in which the so-called instruments of ratification were exchanged. The Iraql Foreign Minister, Murtada Said Abdel Baki, had come to Moscow for that purpose. New Aid Commitments

Today, the government newspaper Izvestia followed up by disclosing new Soviet aid commitments to Iraq thet were agreed on last month after nationaliza-tion of the Iraq Petroleum Co., an international consortium.

An article in Izvestia signed by s high foreign aid official said the Soviet Union had undertaken to assist Iraq with further development of oil resources in the North Rumails, field near the head of the Persian Gulf.

Under the trade and econ accord, signed June 7, the Russians also agreed to build an oil refinery with a capacity of 1.5 million metric tons (about 10 million barrels) a year at Mosul in northern Iraq, near the Kirkuk fields expropriated from the Iraq

The agreement also provided for the building of a 270-mile oil pipeline between the Iraqi cities of Baghdad and Basra and for unspecified assistance in the transportation of Iraqi oil. This was assumed to refer to Soviet tanker shipments from Banias, the Mediterranean terminal of a pipeline from the Kirkuk fields. The details of the Soviet-Iraql accord were disclosed by Alexei Y. Petrushev, a deputy chairman of the Soviet government's Stete Committee for Poreign Economic Relations. which is the Soviet foreign aid

Although the entry into force of the Soviet-Iraqi friendship treaty and the emphasis on economic relations between the two countries might not have been timed to coincide with the Soviet-Egyptian developments, the net effect was to suggest that Moscow retained a close ally in Baghdad even if relations with

News Analysis

Russia's Cosmos Satellites Started by Are Secret, Military Oriented Russia, U.S.

By John Noble Wilford

NEW YORK, July 21 (NYT).-The announcement from Tass, the Soviet news agency, is invariably succinct. An unmanned Cosmos satellite has been launched. Its mission is unspecified. It is to "continue space exploration. And the details are only the barest: the orbital track, the time taken for tho first revolution of earth, the angle that it crosses the equator-nothing more.

A Cosmos can he many things: a scientific satellite, the cover for failures of planetary missions, an experimental "killer" craft designed to intercept and destroy other vehicles in earth orbit, a military photo-taking reconnaissance ship. On an average of once every week or so since 1962, such a Soviet satellite has been launched, and on June 10 an important milestone was reached-Cosmos 500.

Western observers speculated that Cosmos 500 might be an electronic ferreting mission, which involves searching for and listening in on secret military com-munications of the United States and other powers. But, in noting the 500th mission in the series, Soviet newspapers last week dis cussed only the scientific flights, never acknowledging that most Cosmos spacecraft have military objectives.

Military Oriented

As of May 22, according to the Science Policy Research Division of the Library of Congress, at least 324 of the then 490 Cosmos missions seemed to be military oriented. Of that number, 213 Cosmos satellites are believed to have been low-orbit photographic reconnaissance missions in which the peyload was recovered,

In recent years, the satellites havo remained in orbit about 12 or 13 days, passing regularly over the United States, China, the Middle East or other strategic areas. Then their film would be roturned to earth somewhere in the Soviet Union, the spherical capsule dropping to earth by parachute . In times of interna tional tension, such as during the India-Pakistan war, the capsule was ordered down after five days for a quick look at photographs showing troop huildnps and other strategic movements.

Two types of Cosmos-labeled missions that have aroused considerable interest are those that apparently were tests of orbital bombs and satellite interceptors. Thirty-eight Cosmos flights are said to have been such tests.

Nuclear Capability

At least 15 Cosmos tests involving fractional orbital bombard-ment systems (FOBS) have been conducted since 1967. A satellite capable of carrying a nuclear weapon is launched into orbit, hut returns to Soviet soil before completing one orbit of the earth Soch a weapon could, on command from earth, dive on an earth target. But United States authorities doubt that it is any more effective than intercontinental ballistic missiles.

The most recent satellite interin December, 1971. The satellite approached Cosmos 458 and hiew up into 13 pieces. According to a report by the Library of Congress, "The Soviet Union has actively pursued and possibly perfected a system which is capable of reaching a co-orbit with

South Vietnamese Recaptur Bong Son Without a Battle

By Joseph B. Treaster SAIGON, July 21 (NYT) .- times the North Vietname

South Vietnamese troops recap-tured the district town of Bong Son on the central coast today without a fight similar to the manner in which they had lost it to Communist forces nearly three months ago.

A government spokesman, as well as allied officers in the field reached by telephone, reported that South Vietnamese soldiers were in the heart of the key town 290 miles northeast of Saigon. But they disagreed on some of the details. The spokesman said that about 1,000 soldiers were conducting a house-to-house search for North Vietnamese troops inside the city, while the other officers said that only about 200 troops had entered Bong Son and that they were resting in a garrison post there.

New Counteroffensive Bong Son, which along with another district town and most of the northern half of Binh Dinh Province fell to the Communists in April. was the first objective in a new government counterof-fensive that began two days ago. The spokesman said that the entire 22u South Viotnamese division, as many as 10,000 men, had been ordered to retake all of the lost territory in Binh Dinh Province, one of the most heavily populated and least pacified in South Vietnam. At the same time, an even more ambitious effort to retake the northernmost province of Quang Tri was continuing with both sides fighting bitterly for every inch of ground. Government troops were routed from Quang Tri on May 1. It was the only one of South Vietnam's 44 provinces that the North Vietmese managed to capture in the offensive they launched at

Since the operation in Binh Dinh began, there have been fewer than half a dozen infantry clashes and only 13 North Vietnamese soldiers have been reported killed. Not a shot was fired as the South Vietnamese crossed the Laiglang Fliver on their march into town shortly after noon today, the spokesman said. In Saigon tonight one senior South Vietnamese officer expressed concern that the lack of North Vietnamese opposition might indicate that the Communists were merely laying back and waiting to spring a trap as

However, because national party rules do not specify how challenge delegations are to be selected, the Singer group was seated at the convention

Andrew Leahy, attorney for tha Singer challengers, had asked that the Daley request to begin con-tempt proceedings be vacated on the grounds that Judge Covelli had-no jurisdiction to issue the original injunction. Mr. Leahy argued that the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in the Chicago case that courts should not intervene in "internal party squabbles."

'Another Nazi Germany'. Mr. Leahy also asked for a change of venue because of statements made by Judge Covelli in the presence of a newspaper reporter last week. The judge was quoted as saying:

Government Unit Says GM Corvair Is Not Dangerous

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP). The government, which had been prodded by Ralph Nader's charges that early Corvains were dangerously unstable, has concluded that the General Motors compact is no more likely to over-turn than other cars of the same year and weight. The two-year stildy was released yesterday after Mr. Nader already bad attacked it as "a shoddy, internally contradictory whitewash." General Motors said that the report "confirms our position on the handling and stability characteristics of these cars.

The chief conclusion in the study by the Department of Transportation's National Highway Transportation Safety Administration was that "the handling and stability performance of the 1960-1963 Corvair does not result in an abnormal potential for loss of control or rollover and it is at least as good as the performance of some contemporary vehicles both foreign and domes

The government study involved a review of Ford and GM data, track testing of Corvairs in comparison to four other compacts and analysis by outside experts. The conclusions challenged every one of the assertions Mr. Nader has made concerning the car's handling.

Ultrasound Used For Removal of A Kidney Stone

LOS GATOS, Calif., July 21 (AP)—Ultrasound waves have been used in a new technique for quick and painless removal of a kidney etone during an opera-tion that ordinarily would have required open surgery and a week or more of hospitalization, a surgeom reported.

Dr. Roger Goodfriend said in an interview yesterday that he used the technique during an operation performed Sunday at Los Gatos Community Hospital. The patient, identified only as a man in his 30s, reported no

Tonight, President Ceausescu said the party is indissolubly united, but observers in Bucharest have detected some recent hesitation at the top, apparently caused by doubts over Mr. Ceausescu's program.

British Dockers Walk Out After Court Jails 5 Leaders

LONDON, July 21 (Reuters).— Britain's docks were facing total paralysis tonight as thousands of workers marched off their jobs to protest an order to jail five of their leaders.

Only an hour after three of the men were taken to a London prison from a picket line, about 15,000 of the country's 42,000 dockers had stopped work, joining 10,000 already on strike.

The five leaders were ordered to jail, in a precedent-setting case, for contempt of court in persistently picketing new container depots here where simplified cargohandling methods have been in-

The men, who regard these methods as threatening the jobs of the country's dockers, had defied the recently formed National Industrial Court set up under the Conservative govern-ment's controversial new labor

Today's action by the court and its president, Sir John Donaldson, marked the first imprisonment orders under the laws, strongly criticized by the trade union

The court earlier had ordered the five men to stop picketing container depots, but Sir John said today they had continued with their action and had offered no explanation for flouting the court order.

At least one of them had said the picketing would continue whatever the court said, the court president added. None of the five was at the hearing, and only three were present when police went to pick them up from the picket line,

London Workers Ont

Tonight, 90 percent of London's 14,500 dockers were reported on strike. In Hull, on the northeast coast, all 2,800 employees on the docks had stopped working. At Middlesbrough, north of Hull, 1,000 said they would join the strike on Monday if the five leaders were still in jail.

Today's legal action precedes the publication, expected on Tuesday, of joint union-employer proposals for dealing with Britain's "container war"-the issue that for months has convulsed the docks.

On Monday, the Trades Union Congress will meet to review the entire dock situation.

Vic Feather, TUC general secretary, said the unions had warned 18 months ago that action like today's was inevitable under the new government legisla-

Truckers' Blockade Today's legal action came on a day which saw truck drivers tighten a blockade of the docks in reprisal against dockers who have been boycotting the drivers for weeks in the struggle over who should handle container traffic. Truck drivers said the dockers were "getting too big for their boots" and retaliated by cutting off dock work. Picketing was described as almost totally effec-

But in a separate move, the 10,000-strong dock force on Merseyside in northwest England stopped work in response to a strike call over working conditions in a major cargo-handling company. Sixty-three ships were left idle.

Both groups of workers belong to the same union—the Transport and General Workers Union led by Jack Jones.

Mr. Jones, one of Britain's most powerful union leaders, has been working for weeks with port employers on a peace formula that was expected to be ready in a few days.

Thirst Wins Over Ideology In Poland

WARSAW, July 21 (Reuters - Coca-Cola was once derided in Poland as a "decadent" Western drink, but top Communist party officials looked on happily as the first Polish-produced bottles popped out of machines here today.

The officials, Central Committee Secretary Kazimierz Barcikowski and Warsaw party chief Jozef Kepa, attended the opening of a Coca-Cola lactory operating under American license and with some American-produced ingredients and machinery.

The output of the factory will be 200,000 bottles a day, the official news agency. PAP, reported.

The presence of the party chieftains underlined the fact that Coca-Cola has long ceased to be regarded bere as a symbol of degenerate life-styles in the capitalist West.

Injured Climber, Dead Companion On Mont Blanc

AOSTA, Italy, July 21 (Reuters).—An injured climber faced the prospect of a second night in the company of his dead companion bigh on the slopes of Mont Blanc today after attempts to bring them down failed. Police said first reports indicated that the dead man was Polish and the injured man French. Apparently, the Pole had fallen to his death and his companion was injured trying to climb down to him,

The alarm was raised after two Swiss climbers beard cries for help as they were descending the mountain yesterday evening. But bad weather grounded hellcopters and two guides sent to the spot found it impossible to get either the injured man or the dead man down unaided. The names of the two climbers were not immediately known.

Waldheim, in Moscow, Gets Plea to Help Dissident Leave

MOSCOW, July 21 (AP).—A leading nuclear physicist and civil rights advocate, Andrel D. Sakharov, appealed today to United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim on behalf of a Jewish mathematician who has been refused permission to emigrate to Israel.

صكذا من الاجل

Mr. Sakharov made the appeal in an open letter to Mr. Waldheim, who came here Monday for an official visit. The letter, made available to some Western correspondents, was signed by eight civil rights advocates.

They said they were forced to appeal to Mr. Waldheim because of the "desperate plight" of Vladimir Gershovich, a former mathematics lecturer. They said he had been subjected to "continuous persecution" since he supported a group of persons arrested in Red Square in 1968 for protesting against the Soviet-led invasion of Czecboslovakia.

"He has been dismissed from work and his students have been told ba was chairman of a Zionist organization at the syna-gogue," the letter said. "He is called for questioning to the KGB [secret police] and blackmailed with the assertion that psychiatrists are 'concerned' about

The signatories said that Mr. Gersbovich applied to emigrate in 1971 and had been refused permission four times. They told Mr. Waldheim that they were "sure that you sbare our conviction; that no such general and Important matters exist which would provide a reason for ignoring the fate of a single individual who has been made a victim of arbitrariness and lawlessness."

St. Louis Mayor Loses Appeal in Life Libel Suit

ST. LOUIS, July 21 (AP).-The U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals has upheld a lower court decision dismissing St. Louis Mayor A. J. Cervantes's $12-million libel suit against Life magazine.

In a unanimous opinion, written by Judge Roy Stephenson, the court eaid yesterday that Mayor Cervantes, in challenging four paragraphs of an 87-paragraph story in 1970, "framed but a minimal assault on the truth of the matters contained.

"He has not produced a scintilla of proof supportive of a finding that either defendant in fact entertained serious doubts about the truth of a single sentence in the article," the opinion said.

The Life article said that Mayor Cervantes had links with the underworld. It was written by Denny Walsh, a former reporter for the St. Louis Globe Democrat. Mr. Cervantes said that the court did not rule on the "key issue—that Life lied and Life knew it lied." He said that ha would file a petition for a re-hearing in the appellate court.

So naturally an airline from a little country like Swissair confines itself to 78 destinations. Forty of those are in Europe, which after all means only the fourth closestmeshed European network. True, Swissair does fly 26 times a week from Europe to North America, but it hasn't managed anything bigger than a Boeing 747 Byet. And the handful of African cities (17, to be exact) that Swissair serves can't obscure the fact that the competing airline with the most destinations in Africa flies to a few cities more.

Not to mention the Far East, to which Swissair flies but once a day. (Even the exclusive non-stop flights between Geneva and Bombay and between Athens and Bangkok hardly make up for this.)

As you can see, it's no picnic being the airline of a small country; so we won't even talk about our flights to South America. Just pick up our time table, and you'll appreciate the pickle we're in.

ART IN PARIS

'Othello' With Victorian Look

By John Walker

Royal Shakespeare Company's "Othello," seen at Stratford last seeson, is now at the Aldwych, providing marvelous theater, a clear and precise account of the tracedy spiced by its unusual 15th-century setting.

LONDON THEATER

John Barton's choice of the Victorian age emerges not as eccentricity hut as a means of clarifying the centrel themes by emphasizing the era's strict class structure, within and without military society, that extended to sexual preoccupations. It was, after all, a time when a noctor could explain that normal women often have no sexual feelings, a belief that obviously underlies Brabantio's outrage at Desdemona's behavior.

In appearance, Lisa Harrow's Desdemons, full of elegant economy, is a demure crinolined figure who might have strayed from one of Mrs. Gaskeli's novels. Othello (Brewster Mason), altheugu an oddity—Brabantio here has a black servant-is very

Arts Agenda

The 1972-73 season of the Hamburg State Opera, which will see the end of the regime of Rolf Liebermann as intendent, includes the first performances of three works commissioned by the company. They are 'Mio, Main Mio," a children's opera by the Russian-born Swiss composer Constantin Regamey, which will be conducted by Bruno Maderna; "Kyldex I," which takes its name from its description as a "cybernetic-luminodynamic experiment" with the "participation of the public"-it will combine the talents of Pierre Henry for the music, Nicolas Schöffer for the staging and settings, Alwin Nikolais for choreography and Plerre Cardin for costumes; and 'Under Milkwood," an opera by the Hamburg composer Walter Steffens based on Dylan Thomas's work Other new productions are of Mussorgsky's "Boris Godunov." which will be conducted by Horst Stein, the company's new musical director: Verdi's "A Masked Ball," Strauss's "Capriccio," with Julius Rucel of the New York City Opera conducting, and Henze's ballet "Undine," choroegraphed by Lorca

CONDON, July 21 (IHT).—The much an officer and a gentleman. Iago almost emerges as a hero of the working classes, a soldier who has worked his way no from the ranks to discover that he is still regarded as socially inacequate and so takes reverge on those who think of themselves as his superiors.

Emrys James is excellent in the role, a cringing Urlah Ecep-like figure, ever so humble, with the manner of a barrack-room lawyer, whining like a whipped cur when things go wrong, spitting his contempt when alone.

Cyprus. in Julia Trevelyan Oman's ingenious and atmospheric stockade of a set, is an outpost of empire where the occupying army, and especially its leaders. have little to do but hrood in the heat. If the production falters in its later stages, it is because Othello is a somewhat incolent, easy-going man who is a bad judge of character —Iago's, Cassio's, and his own. Despite some strenuous efforts. he remains essentially affable to the end. It is a flaw, but one that does not prevent this pronuction from being a considerable triumph.

I remain antipathetic to the plays of J.M. Barrie, finding his mixture of craft and wooden whimsy emetic in its effect. His strangest play, "Mary Rose," revived at the Shaw Theatre to provide a perfect role for Mia Farrow, fails to cast its reputed speli, It is an excessively odd play, with its story of a fey young girl who has got into the habit of mysteriously disappearing while visiting a small island and then returning later, not knowing that she has been away nor having aged. The second act ends with her return after a 25-year absence when, still a young girl, she is horrifled to find that her parents are old and her husband middle-aged. The third deals with the confrontation between her ghost and her grown-up son, thus leaving out the most interesting aspect-how did she and they adjust to each other after such a time?

Barrie seems to have been anxious to hurry through his elaborate charade so that the son could play a love scene with a mother young enough to be his wife. (In the circumstances, the son's remark to the spirit of his mother: "How do you lay a gbost?" takes on Freudian overtones.

Miss Farrow seems at home in this strange atmosphere, im-personating an upper-middle class English girl impercably, and is well supported by the rest of the cast. Johanna Bryant's set is remarkable for looking at its most dilapldated in the flashback sequences.

Two unnecessary examples of the appalling ineptitude of British musicals are "Liberty Ranch" at the Greenwich Theatre, and "Pull Both Ends" at the Piccadilly.

The latter is mainly a vehicle the young generation, multitudinous group of dancers who made their reputation on television variety shows, where perhaps it is casier to overlook the fact that they possess no more than ordinary talents. Certainly, they are incapable of sustaining a musical with choreography that is designed merely to display exuberance and energy. Their songs are pre-recorded, a wise precaution since all of John Schroeder's and Anthony King's music and lyrics are instantly forgettable.

The setting is a Christmas cracker factory. Brian Comport's book takes advantage of this to quote numerous corny jokes intended as cracker mottoes. The rest of his dialogue sounds like the factory's rejects. In front of the frenetic activities of the dancers, there is a predictable romance between the boss's son. played by Miles Greenwood as a somewhat effete hero, and the daughter of an American anxious to take over the factory. Rarely have I felt such a deadening of the spirit as during the inexpressible crudities of the opening scene. The musical manages to maintain this low level through-

"Liberty Ranch" is better, but not much, and sadder, since it is a potentially enjoyable show that has somewhow lost its way through confused intentions. Gilliam Lynne directs and choreographs in a straightforward hearty manner, encouraging the cast, especially Elizabeth Seal, to ogle the audience relentlessly. But the lyrics of Ned Sherrin and Carvl Brahms, who also devised the show, are intent on parodying musicals, Westerns, and particularly musical Westerns like

"Liberty Ranch." Based as It is on Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer" and his excellent joke of guests mistaking a house for a botel, Dick Vosburgh's book should be funnier than it is. Tony Lumpkin has become an Indian named Tommy Hawk, one of the show's better jokes. He is described as "a half-breed who doesn't half breed." One of the worst jokes is Kate, who, instead of impersonating a servant to win the love of the shy Marlowe-here the son of a Boston banker-tarts herself up as a dance-hall hostess. "I was Custer's pen-ultimate stand," she says, which, I fear, is intended as another

John Cameron's music, with fiddle and harmonica giving a country and Western flavor, is pleasant although many of the songs have nothing to do with the action, which is too much concerned with making the same points over and over again in case anyone missed them. It is a show in search of a ruthless re-write.

At the Young Vic, a double bill of Harold Pinter's "The Dwarfs" and Ted Hughes's "The Wound" proves to be heavy going, since both works, written for the radio, gain little from stage production.
"The Dwarfs," written in 1960 and since revised, details the struggle for supremacy between three young men and comes to life only in the fantasizing of the overwrought Len (Richard Warwick). There is one speech, full of images of rat corpses and animal horror, that sounds as if it could have been written by Mr. Hughes. His "The Wound" is a sort of wartime "Orpheus in the Underworld," with a young delirious soldier making a journey back from death with the aid of his Eurydice. It is well staged, in often stygian gloom, by Peter McEnery, who also plays the leading role. But it is richly descriptive writing that is better heard and not seen.

Summing Up Surrealism in a Show

By Michael Gibson

PARIS (IHT).—A person I know once told me about the recurrent dream she had as a little girl. In it she walked along a narrow strip of land between two bodies of water. Somewhere along the strip a snake key in wait and behind it stood a turnstile. The girl knew that if she could pass it she would be safe. The dream always ended with a desperate race to get past the snake and a terrifled awakening. An older friend commented that the only way to deal with an inevitable danger was to face it. The next time the dream came, she had somehow integrated this advice into it. When she saw the snake waiting for her, she made a brave effort and walked resolutely up to it. But when she reached the spot, all she found was a shrivelled skin lying on the

Such a story is a rather good parable of the value and limitations of the surrealist movement It appeared in an age when the unconscious still held all the terrors of the threatening make, and it took a lot of courage to face it. Its limitations are a consequence of its historical situation. For once the terror of the snake has been overcome, the adventure cannot be repeated.

Surrealism appeared some 50 years ago, early in the Freudian age. Some of its ideas are directly derived from Freud and others arose out of the same soil that nourished and inspired Freud himself—the intuitions of the roman ic poets, and the German romantics in particular. The unconscious can thus appear as an avatar of the pantheistic divinity immanent in nature, being raised above the status of fact and viewed as a mythical entity.

The church built around it with Breton as its pontiff included a variety of tendencies. The better artists naturally went beyond the mere implications of the idea; all participated with a huge, feverish enthusiasm and many staked their life or sanity in the venture-Wolfgang Paalen or Antonin Artaud for instance.

The exhibition at the Musée des Arts Décoratifs, 107 Rue de Rivoli, Paris (to Sept. 24), is a particularly attractive summation of the movement, intelligent, unpretentious and affectionate. Poets as well as painters and sculptors are incinded, and so are a number of artists whose presence there, as exhibition organizer Patrick Waldberg concedes, may seem debatable: e.g. Marcel Duchamp. But even a movement disciplined, as this one was, by periodic excommunicatlons (Dali in 1938) cannot be limited to any strict definition. The broad spectrum of this exhibition, which includes some 90 artists and writers, makes it all the more interesting.

André Breton, in one of his earliest essays on the subject, used the word surrealism to designate "a certain form of psychic automatism corresponding fairly closely to the dream state." As a result of this sort of view, poets and artists became oracular mediums quite frequently putting themselves into a hypnotic state in order to write

Breton and the others were aware of the risks involved in dabbling with the trance state, and not all the surrealists actually followed this

Greater stress is increasingly her laid upon interpersonal forces that may be a consciously active but which are not included to the unconscious. As a result the surrealist approx no longer fully satisfies us.

Not all the surrealists were of course concern with this world of dreams. Some expressed their selves through wit and others through the about -Picubia, Man Ray, Morkse, Mesens, Max Em and of course Magritte.

It is interesting to note that those artists the are somehow tributary to surrealism today by whose work is felt to be relevant nonetheless am thinking of an artist like Dado) are men a a single obsession, as though men today thank their obsessions rather than their dreams. Unforgettable Years" by Yang Chi-huang, teacher at the Institute of Fine Arts.

According to the official line, those guidelines lost their force over the years, with the result that they were commonly trampled upon during the early 1960s by artists under the influence of the so-called revisionists, led by Liu Shao-chi, who was then China's chief of state. To save the country from the revisionists Mr. Mao launched the Cultural Revolution, which sought, among other things, to return the nation's artists and writers to the socialist path he had set forth in his "talks."

The current exhibition, the first art display in Peking since the Cultural Revolution, seeks to put the artistic fruits of the upheaval out front where the public can see them. It does so in unequiv-oral fashion. "This exhibition," declares the sign at the entrance," testilles to the fact that the broad masses of workers, peasants and soldiers have occupied the field of fine arts. They have be-come the masters of artistic

All the works in the exhibition -oil paintings, graphics and scis-sor cuts—have been done since the Cultural Revolution, some by artists who had already established their reputations before the upheaval But the majority 65 percent, according to official ligures—are by amateurs inspired by the upsurge of revolutionary spirit. One gallery is given over entirely to portraits of the chairman, showing him at various points in his career.

The work best-known inside China is "On the Way to Anyuan." Completed in 1969, by Liu Chuan-hua, an art student it depicts the youthful Mao, in flowing gown, crossing a moun-tain ridge on his way to the Anyuan colliery in his native province of Hunan

There, in 1921, Mao organized a strike that was to become a watershed in the history of Chinese Communism, Like many other paintings in the exhibition, this one is infused with a sense of nptimism, of the inevitable triumph of good (Communism) over evil (the forces of reaction), and of socialist man over the forces

.This quality is strongly present in another work that is attracting great attention at the exhibition. Entitled "Unforgettable Years." and painted by Yang Chi-kuang, teacher at Peking's Institute of Fine Arts, it shows Dr. Norman Bethune striding through drift-ing snow beside the Great Wall China. Behind tha doctor, a Canadian, is a pack horse carrying medical supplies, and an orderly. Together, the two men were bound for Yenan, where Dr. Bethune was to die within the year-1938-in the service of the Communists.

To students of traditional Chinese art, there is evidence that Chinese artists bave not lost their feel for nature. Few artists have ever had the skill with landscapes that the Chinese have exhibited over the centuries. and it is a quality that is not lost

ART MARKET

How the Auctioneers Capitalize on Trends

By Souren Melikian

TONDON (IET).-Fashions in art are not made in the salesrooms. They depend, rather, on subtle and shifting aesthetic attitudes. But auctioneers can organize and channel trends.

This is what Sotheby's did last year when it opened its Belgravia branch (IHT, Oct. 16, 1971) to exploit a revived interest in Victorian art. Christie's joined the fray a week ago with a round of sales (July 11-14) during which paintings fetched unheard of sums. Rising prices for Victoriana is one of the major phenomena of the past season.

Marcus Linell of Sotbeby's Belgravia probably did more than anyone else to lay the foundations for this commercial success. At the new branch, he organized sale after sale, employing techniques skillfully designed to capitalize on the newly-awakened interest.

A new catalogue-square with red cover-was designed for the branch office. Sales included the Victorian stars-but also the lesser-known artists of the period whose work seemed more glamorous in such company. Ceramics and other objets d'art were sold at equally carefully pisnned auctions. A year after it opened, Sotheby's Belgravia was the established leader in its field.

As one of the directors Christie's candidly said the other day, his firm planned the Victorian sales to meet the competition on its own grounds. The fascinating thing is that it worked. Indeed, the Christie's sales were the climax of the whole

The Range

The range was broad, Victorian being understood as a chronological, rather than stylist category. The paintings went from kitsch to British "impressionism." There were landscapes of the sort favored to this day by British Rail for posters. Such was a pair of Irish landscapes by one Edward Hargitt, There were paintings of fantastic inspiration, such as John Martin's "Marcus Curtius," showing a man on a white horse galloping through a strange Roman city beneath a thunderous sky.

Millais

A sentimental scene of a man embracing a woman, broke the all-time record for a work by Sir John Everett Millais, selling for £31,500, Called "A Huguenot on Saint Bartholomew's Day Refusing to Shield Himself From Danger by Wearing the Roman Catholic Badge," it is one of the most famous pre-Raphaelite paintings. It was exhibited five times in the 19th century and three times in recent years, as well as at the great Millais retrospective at the Royal Academy in 1967. Still, £31,500 is a fantastic sum for a work which, interesting as it may be from an art historian's viewpoint, re-instance. It was a perfect blend.

No wonder records were broken.

There were two other Millais. equally sloppy and syrupy, but of a later date and, therefore, of lesser historical interest. That they sold for buge prices is even more significant than the record The portrait of a young girl holding a bird was bought by a collector for $6,800 and another portrait of a girl went to the best male actor.

U.S. Film Wins Top Award at Spanish Festival

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, July 21 (AP).-The U.S. film "The Glass House" by Tom Gries was awarded the "Golden Seashell" or first prize at the annual fibn festival here Wednesday. The "Silver Seashell" or second prize was awarded to an Italian film, "La Polizia Ringrazia," directed by Stefano Vanzina.

France won the Golden Seashell for short films with "Chavalantrophe.

Mia Farrow was awarded the San Sebastian prize as the best actress for her role in the Brit-ish feature "Follow Me." Fernando Rey with Spain's Duda" and Topol of Israel with "Follow Me" shared the prize for ordinary sketch for a neo-Gothic window by the same artist fetched only £3,150. Very close to some of Blake's watercolors and, at the same time, a precursor, in its surrealism, of Magritte's or even Dali's work, the design was uncharacteristic of Millais. In charcoal and sepia wash, heightened with white and green, it was an early work, done in August, 1853. For the history of European art trends, it is more important, in my view, than tha three pompous oils that sold for so much more. J. J. Mans, a private collector who acquired the design, should consider himself lucky.

Other Artists

Millais's dazzling company probably helped the other painters in the sale seem more interesting For instance, a new record of £4,200 was set for a landscape by Atkinson Grimshaw. This was a view of Westminster from the other side of the Thames, painted in 1883. Grim-shaw painted the same sorts of things that appealed to his contemporaries, the French impressionists—but in an academic manner. His "Wimbledon Park— Autumn Afterglow' (1886) made £2,100 in the same sale.

The question now arises whether or not these high prices will be maintained. My personal guess is that all depends on the ability of English auctioneers to control the supply of paintings. If the market is suddenly swamped with the contents of English attles, the effect could be disastrous. But if, as they have so far succeeded in doing, the auctioneers can maintain the fine balance among the rarer "masters" (Millais, Burne-Jones and others), the neo-academic stuff and the work of fantastic inspiration (an underlying current in British art during Victorian times), many more fine days may lie ahead.

Monetary Responsibility

The administration's dramatic move in Joining Europe to defend the dollar and other current exchange rates in world markets was described most pungently by the New York banker who said it demonstrated that the United States was "back in the human race." The "Connally era" of adversary relationships with the country's major allies and trading partners has been ended by this one symbolic stroke, which signifies a return to the kind of international monctary cooperation that existed before the former Treasnry secretary took office.

For seven months the United States has left it up to the Europeans to defend the exchange rates set by last December's Smithsonian pact, described by President Nixon as "the most significant monetary agreement in the history of the world." Hyperbole aside, there clearly was a monetary "agreement" at the Smithsonian, which set new. fixed exchange rates, pending permanent reform of the world monetary system on a more flexible basis. But the United States until now has behaved with a kind of "benign neglect," as if preservation of that agreement were entirely up to the Europeans.

One result has been that the interim monetary system established at the Smithsonian became crisis-prone. The speculative attack on the pound, which forced its downward float June 23, and the subsequent attack on the dolar rate, which exploded with new viruience last week, made a new American approach vital-in the American interest as well as thet of the rest of the world.

It was hazardous to argue that a further decline in the dollar rate—even if it threatened the Smlthsonian pact-was in the American interest because it would make American exports more competitive. Instability has in fact brought a dangerous trend toward exchange controls that has gone far beyond the policing of "hot money" to limit the free flow of long-term capital. Washington has been beavily pressed to make Europe's monetary dikes more solid by imposing new controls on the outflow of dollars from the United States. Trade restrictions might well be the next step.

native to controls as a means of stabilizing the interim monetary system created by the Smithsonian conference. Acceptance of partlal responsibility by the United States for maintaining the exchange rate structure set in December is the best way to discourage speculation.

What clearly has been needed is an alter-

The second secon

No one is suggesting that the United States resume full responsibility for supporting the exchange rate of the dollar, as before Aug. 15. But the weight of the United States in the world's trade and monetary transactions is too great for Enrope alone to carry the burden. A joint European-American elfort will be essential to construct a permanent monetary system and make it work. It is equally essential if the interim monetary system is to function in a flexible but stable

Many technical methods can be devised to achieve this objective. The one now adopted on the urging of Federal Reserve Board chairman Burns is a return to currency swaps as prior to Aug. 15. The United States will borrow European currencies and use them to buy dollars in the currency markets when necessary to support the Smithsonian exchange rate. Repayment of the borrowed currencies could mean a loss of American monetary reserves. But the United States can control the amount, And the mere announcement that the United States will stand side by side with the Europeans in defense of the Smithsonian rates should bring speculative raids to an end.

None of this means a return to the rigidity of exchange rates that existed prior to Aug. 15. If it takes two or three years to negotiate a permanent monetary system, changes may be necessary in the Smithsonian rates. A precedent for this has been set by the Brit-

What is essential is that changes be made by agreement and that, meanwhile, the major monetary nations cooperate to keep principal currencies stable. The American return to cooperation this week is a hopeful sign for the future prosperity and security of the Western world.

Rescue at Sea

too little attention was ever paid to protecting the varieties of life in the sea, as compared with the endangered animals of the land. On the high seas little policing was possible against commercial marauders intent on harvesting whales, harming porpolses or killing seals. At least on land, an eye could be kept on the mischief. The situation on the seas has not changed in any dramatic way, but several recent actions suggest that at least a new and potentially important direction is heing taken.

A first signal of progress was flashed from the Commerce Department last month when Secretary Peter G. Peterson announced a new concern for the porpoise. Rather than allowing these valuable and intelligent mammals to be needlessly killed when tune fish are trapped—the porpolses feed in the same waters and become tangled in the tuna nets and accidentally drown-Commerce is supporting a modest program (3250,000) that may prevent future abuse. Admittedly, this effort is late in the game and not large, but considering the past attitude of the Commerce Department-industry first, and let the ocean mammals sink or swim on their own-Secretary Peterson's move is both progressive and timely.

Earlier, another new direction was indicated when the department proposed an experimental ban on the harvesting of seals

For years, the great despair among con- on St. George, one of the Pribiloff Islands servationists and wildlife specialists was that off the coast of Alaska. A long dispute has groups and Commerce officials, and although the seal harvest will continue on another Priblioff Island during the ban, the decision indicates the department is not as immovable as it once seemed.

A third advance is on whales. Russell E. Train, chairman of the Council on Environmental Quality, recently returned from the London meetings of the International Whaling Commission where his delegation pressed hard for protecting whales from commercial exploitation. Unfortunately, a U.S. resolution for a ban on whaling was defeated. even though the same resolution was approved without dissent at the Stockholm environmental conference. The difference between the two groups was that the London meeting was controlled by commercial whaling interests. Japan and Russia, major whaling nations that are feverishly driving many species of the giant beasts to fast extinction, opposed the ban. The United States, which does not import whale products, came late to its sensible position, and perhaps deserves little credit because It gave up whaling last year as a low-profit industry. But at least we are on the right side of the issue now, with a chance at Influencing other commission members to pnt down the harpoons and leave the whales in peace. -THE WASHINGTON POST.

McGovern Candidacy

Despite the trend created by the McGovern candidacy, the November revolution will probably not occur in the U.S. . . . McGovern really deserves the presidency . . . because be has known for years that a grass roots movement is in the process of transfiguring America; and because he also knows that this movement can bring him to power. All great men in history have at least one thing in common: at certain times. they knew how to seize an opportunity. The most fascinating thing perhaps is that, in U.S., this has never required a coup d'état . . . McGovern's chances are thin, not to say virtually nil. The July 13 song of victory is purely platonic. It hails a miraculous success after a meritorious effort. But the revolution is unlikely to happen . . . Yet anything can happen in the U.S., where virtue will often pay off, notwithstanding what is frequently said by Europeans who are often unfair toward the U.S. McGovern is a frank, honest, sincere man . . . The trend he has known how to pick up is deep-rooted and durable. It was started by J. F. Kennedy . . . The U.S. elections of 1972 will be the most important of the post-war era. Even a Mc-Govern defeat could not wipe out a will

Rhodesia and the Olympics

What does the Foreign Office think it is playing at? This self-willed department has completely disrupted plans for Rhodeeia to take part in the Olympic Games. Even though the Rhodesians were prepared to march behind the Union Jack. Even though they were fielding a multi-racial team . . But the foes on Rhodesia in the Foreign Office may well have wrecked Rbodesia's chances. These faceless men are pursuing the feud with Mr. Ian Smith which began eight years ago. They cannot forgive him for succeeding in Rhodesia. The Foreign Secretary, Sir Alec Douglas-Home, should no longer tolerate the antics of these people. They should be dismissed from all connection with Anglo-Rhodeslan affairs.

HANOI.—The smart money in Las Vegas is not quoting heavier odds against George Mc-Govern's election as President than the Communist leadership here in Hanoi, and that fact says something important about the way North Vietnam approaches U.S. public opinion and internal politics.

The North Vietnamese do not act in an aggressive fashion to score big gains in the United States. On the contrary, they act on U.S. opinion defensively, in order to minimize their own

One sure sign is the attitude here toward the presidential electlon. Every North Vietnamese I have questloned on the subject agrees with the judgment of Mai Van Bo, a high-ranking diplomat in the Foreign Ministry, that "McGovern has only a slight chance to win."

It is plain wrong to suppose that the North Vietnamese leaders are pinning their hopes on the senator from South Dakota. Their hopes rest on the perception that it would be a great coup for President Nixon if he could achieve a settlement of the war.

War and Re-Election As Le Duc Tho, the Politburo member who serves as chief Communist negotiator at the Paris peace talks, said in an interview here the other day: "If Nixon makes a peaceful settlement, he will surely be re-elected." Since they are not stupid, the North Vietnamese are bound to make what they can out of the President's super-keen interest in reaching a settlement. If only to secure some easing of U.S. milltary pressure, they are sure to come forward with some noises that sound peaceful. Indeed, I am inclined to believe that Le Duc Tho has gone to Paris this time chiefly to try to secure the end of the present bombing and the lifting of the blockade.

A similarly defensive outlook governs the North Vietnamese on another current cause célèbre—the bombing of the dikes. The dikes comprise a highly integrated hydraulic system for the most productive part of North Vietnam. If the U.S. Air Force, which lives by routine, were truly going after the dikes, it would do so in a methodical, not a harumscarum, way. I have to cooclude from what I have seen that there is no deliberate U.S. drive to bomb the dikes.

Ideal SAM Sites

But the dikes do run parallel to many roads. Some are close to railroad tracks and bridges. The dikes also make ideal sites for the surface-to-air, or SAM. missiles about which U.S. pilots have such a thing.

Given the probable errors in U.S. bombing, which are not small judging by my experience here, a major effort is bound to hit some cikes. Without really wanting to, the United States is plainly bombing the dikes, and if bornoing continues there well could be serious floods as a

NEW YORK.—The most inter- and government as esting tourists in the world cerned in the Uniter this summer are the travelers to Moscow. Every few days now there is a report of some American. Occasionally, there is a Soviet scientific mission to the United States—the latest being to look over our space centers and plan for a joint U.S.-Soviet space mission in 1975—but usually Western officials and businessmen are checking in at the hotels around Red Square to discuss trade with the U.S.S.R. State Committee for Science and Technology.

Secretary of Commerce Peterson is there now. Dr. Armand Hammer, chairman of the U.S. Occidental Petroleum Corp., has just come out of Moscow to announce that he has made a deal to exchange patents and technological information for Soviet oil, gas, metals and other raw materials; and other private entrepreneurs and officials from the advanced industrial nations were there before them, arranging to build automobile, chemical and other modern industrial plants in the USSR.

There are obvious advantages for both sides in this new emphasis on peaceful trade. Moscow gains the technology it needs through computers and other advanced devices to modernise its industry, increase production and raise the standard of living of its

Meanwhile, the industrial West, facing a so-called "energy crists." can plan for the coming shortages with supplies of natural gas from the Soviet Union and petroleum from the Middle East, where Moseow's influence remaine strong, despite recent difficulties with Egypt and the Sudan,

Nevertheless, even Western of-ficials who favor increased commercial and political cooperation across the iron curtain, agree that dependence on energy resources from areas controlled or strongly influenced by the Soviet Union risks the possibility that this energy could be cut off in some future military emergency and thus raises strategic ques-tions that cannot be ignored. While such intimidation may legitimate in warfare, it must be outlawed in our daily lives. Noise is not just a nuisance. It is also a serious health hazard to which, according to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, at least 40 million Americans are dangerously exposed.

An equal number, eave the same recent EPA report, suffer occasional infringement on their ability to converse in their homes due to aircraft and construction noises.

The threat is not only conversation. At several points in this city, fairly steady noise levels have been measured at more than 100 decibels. That is about the level of a rock band or riveting machine and about 30 decibels above what physicians consider tolerable.

This kind of racket, according to a recent article by Theodore Berland in Smithsonian Magazine, can cause permanent loss of hearing that cannot be repaired by bearing aids or surgical It can cause heart damage,

Power Equation

Few, if any, noises usually defined as unwanted and disturbing sounds are unavoidable; even in this age of machines. The trou-ble is that many people want to make noise. They equate noise with power, as the primitive warriors do. They know full well that civilized behavior is quiet. behavior. The gap between what we know we should do and what we really want to do is cleverly exploited by advertising.

The ads tells us that cars, aircraft, lawimowers, outboard engines, snowmobiles and what not give us "quiet smooth comfort." But these claims are just a concession to conventional hypocrisy. Manufacturers know that noisy products sell better.

In his book "Noise Pollution: The Unquiet Crisis," Clifford Bragdon cites several instances to this effect. A quiet lawnmower, for instance, was recently withdrawn from the market because the buying public, according to the manufacturer's market research, believes noisy models to be more powerful and efficient. Truckers, often in violation of the law, frequently remove mufflers and modify the exhaust system, to cater to the aggressive instincts of noise-happy drivers. The "whisper quiet" Hoover vacuum cleaner was a commercial flop because housewives seem convinced that reduced noise

Business Group Seeks End Of Wage and Price Controls

By Edward Cowan

WASHINGTON, July 21 (NYT). Employment Without Inflation." -The Committee for Economic Development recommended yesterday that the government devise criteria and procedures for selective termination of wage - price

The committee, comprised of 200 businessmen and educators with heavy representation from big: manufacturing concerns and high finance, suggested that busi-ness, labor and others be permitted to petition for decontrol.

The initiative "should not be left solely in the hands of the administrators of the stabilization program," the committee said in a policy paper entitled "High

Bonn Minister Supports U.S. Dollar Move

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP-DJ).—West Germany's Finance Minister Helmut Schmidt says that the central banks of Germany and other countries are ready to assist the United States in its new policy of periodic intervention in foreign exchange markets in support of the dollar, But, Mr. Schmidt said after talks with Treasury Secretary George Shultz and Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur Burns yesterday, the United States has adequate monetary re-serves "for the time being" to accomplish its objectives. To raise productivity and weaken the economy's inflationary hiss, the committee recommended more so-called productivity bargaining between labor and management and measures to promote competition in product and labor

The committee recommended that the present compulsory con-trols be continued "until, but only until, the program shows reasonable success in meeting its targets." They are a rate of infla-tion of 3 to 3 percent by the end of 1972 (the administration has refused to define this goal more precisely) and a perallel drop in the unemployment rate to roughly 5 percent.

The committee called for selective decontrol for industries or companies that met criteria to be specified. Among them would be the performance of wages, prices and profits and the elimination of obstacles to competition, Selective decontrol, the paper

Two Men Indicted

For Jetliner Hijack

PHILADELPHIA, July 21 (UPI) An exchange student from Ethiopia and a Washington, D.C.

parking lot attendant were indicted Wednesday by a federal grand jury in connection with last week's hijacking of a National

Lulfeged Tesfa, 22, an exchange student at Howard University.

and Stanley Green, 34, were accused of hijacking the jet en route fron Miami to New York last Weanesday and forcing it to land at Philadelphia International Airport. They surrendered after they allegedly forced the crew of the plane to fly them in a second jet from Philadelphia to Lake Jackson, Texas.

How to have a portfolio of $5,000 to $50,000 supervised for capital growth objectives

Here are the five simple steps you take to place your portfolio under The Danforth Associates Investment Management:

1. Write us now for a 42-page booklet describing this tested plan. There is no obligation and no one will call you. We serve clients all over the world (in at least 64 countries) solely by correspondence.

2. Study our procedures and objectives. See how we will try to help your capital grow by carefully sclecting and supervising your investments in leading common stocks. Compare the 15-year "Performance Record" of all the funds we have been privileged to manage.

3. Send us a "Request Form" telling the amount of money in cash or security values you want us to manage, how you want dividends and fees handled and, if you wish, a little helpful data on your own financial plans.

4. Open your own brokerage account with a large NYSE Member Firm which, for efficiency, has a special office serving only Danforth clients. Deposit your cash and/or securities in this account and give them limited power to accept instructions from us - with all transactions to be made only in your name.

5. From this point on, our analysts will make decisions to try to help your capital grow as fast as possible consistent with reasonable precautions. As in any selection of investments, losses do and will occur, but you will know their decisions promptly. You receive monthly accountings and quarterly evaluations. You ean withdraw at any

The plan thus far has proved, we believe, especially efficient in providing capital growth supervision to portfolios starting with from $5,000 to $50,000. To take your first step now, simply write "send booklet" with your name and address and mail to Dept. U-29.

THE WAR WAS BETTER

By Miodrag Bulatovic. Translated from the Serbo Cip by G.S. Brusar. Adapted by Michael Wolfert. McGras 424 pp. $7.95.

Reviewed by Joseph Hitrec

HE once described himself as of proletarian time, the on an ex-clochard "who would of Europe will be america". like to remain invisible,". made international headlines from a Belgrade courtroom where he sued a publisher for not printing a novel of his that had been contracted for. (He won damages.) He can hole up in the Slovenian Alps, through a long winter and spend the next three months being videotaped in Paris and for the German TV. His books are read in Afrikaans, Hebrew, Chinese (and 20 other languages), yet only occasionally in his own country, where of-ficials wish he would go away. Such is the public image of Miodrag Eulatovic, the gleeful drop-out of Yugoslav letters, whose current poyel represents the third attempt to "introduce" him to

American readers. The first two were "The Red Cock Files to Heaven," some eight years ago, and "Hero on a Donkey," published in 1968. The attendant silence may have had to do with indifferent translations; perhaps also with the fact that they were sneaked into print. He has fared much better in France, Italy, Germany and Scandinavia where he is published regularly and discussed with a mixture of relish and puzzlement. His first novel, "The Wolf and the Bell," and the tales of wartime Montenegro, "The Dark One," prompted Les Nouvelles Littéraires to call him "a great writer, a poetic force that is truly prodigious"; and Nathalie Sarraute has characterized the former as "the. death-knell" of the anti-novel. Reviewers elsewhere have invok-ed the names of Gunter Grass, Beckett, Dostoevski, Fellini, Rabelais, Hieronymus Bosch with telepathic regularity. The usefulness of this lies in war was Better moves a allusion rather than analogy, and the opaque surfaces of lies serves only to illustrate the prob- and zeros in on the original control of placing Bulatovic, in whose lightent and monstrous in current novel, for one, these demonstrates and monstrous in diverse echoes, it present at all, it with a will that for side must then be merged in so dis- vention and energy might inclive a mix that they are no a Genet or a Burrough each longer recognizable. Bulatovic's hero is Gruban Malic, a saloon-keeper from a mountain hamlet of Montenegro, a contemporary fighter in the cause of Lenin, a madcap ideologue whose one passion is to carry the Marxist-Leninist message to all of Europe. Like Marko of the old poems. Malic leads a charmed existence. Although he died in the earlier novel, "Hero on a Donkey," here he is alive and well again, chasing the routed Italian Army across the Adriatic to Rome, bent on dictat-

As militants go, he is short on dialectics, long on an addled sense of cosmic injustice. He still rides a donkey, but now carries a

Pirates' Giusti, a Pitcher Spurned, Cries Foul Over All-Star Choices

NEW YORK, July 21 (NYT) -The All-Star Game's selection of pitchers is a "fraud," the Pirates' top reliever. Dave Ginsti, charged yesterday. His former manager, Danny Murtangh, selected the National League's nine pitchers (the starting line-up, except for the pitchers, was selected by fans). Muraugh picked two relievers—the Meta. Tug McGraw and the Reds' Clay Carroll. Giusti has 14 saves, a 191 carned-run average and a 44 won-lost mark. McGraw has as many saves, but a 2.05 era and a 34 mark. Carroll is 4-2, with 21 saves and a 1.69 average. Barl Weaver, the American League manager, picked the American League hurlers and didn't select a reliever. That means that Sparky Lyle of the Yankees, one of the best relief pitchers in baseball, will not be on the squad. Another top player not on the team is Richie Scheinblum, the American League's leading hitter, who is a rookie and was left off the computer-card ballot.

Orioles Get 3 in 10th, Top Royals Rettenmund Hits

Bases-Full Single NEW YORK, July 21 (NYT).-Merv Rettenmand hit a pinchsingle with the bases loaded in the 10th inning to give the Baltimore Orioles an 8-5 road victory over the Kansas City Royals last

The victory kept the Orioles a game behind the American League Eastern Division leaders, the Detroit Tigers, who beat the Texas Rangers.

Paul Blair opened the 10th with a walk and moved to second on a sacrifice. A hit batsman and Johnny Cates's pop-fly single loaded the bases before Retten-mind's decisive hit. The Royals had scored twice in the eighth and twice in the ninth to send the game into extra innings.

Tigets 5, Rangers 1 Bill Slayback pitched a fivehitter and struck out 13 hatters as Detroit scored a 5-1 road decision over Texas. The 24-year-old rookle righthander struck out the side in the first and sixth innings and went on to register his fourth victory against three set-backs. Detroit got its winning run in the fifth when Eddie Brinkman heat out a bunt, was sacrificed to second by Slavback and scored on Dick McAuliffe's single Red Sox 2, 4, Athletics 1, 2 Carl Yastrzemski forced home the winning run when he walked with the bases loaded and two out in the 11th inning to give Boston a 4-3 home victory over Oakland and a sweep of a doubleheader. Boston took the opener on a fourhitter by Marty Pattin, 2-1. Doug Griffin's squeeze bunt scored Danny Cater with the deciding run. Pattin's victory was his sixth in succession, giving him an 8-8 won-lost mark.

Aspromonte to Japan HOUSTON, July 21 (UPI),-Bob Aspromente, an infielder who retired this season, said yesterday he will go to Japan next week to become a coach and a part-time player for the Hiroshima baseball club.

Aspromonte, 34, played for the New York Mets last season and had a tryout with the Cincinnati Reds this spring, but an injury to his right leg last year didn't heal sufficiently. He had played for the Brooklyn and Los Ange-les Dodgers, the Houston Astros and the Atlanta Braves in a career which began in 1956.

Aspromonte said he would stay in Japan six to eight weeks, "They mads the deal so lucrative that I couldn't pass it up," he said. "They just want me to show them more of the American ways of playing and play part time." Aspromonte said he would return in two months to campaign for the Republican party.

Guimard Quits: Merckx Leads Cycling by 10:03

AUXERRE. France, July 21 (Reuters).—Belgian Eddy Merckx increased his lead in the Tour de France cycling classic today after Frenchman Cyrille Guimard, shadowing the world champion in second place overall, withdrew at the start of the 18th leg. Martinus Wagtmans of the Wastmans was timed in 7 hours 38 minutes Zi seconds and received a 20-second bonus for winning the leg. Merckx, who did not finish in the top 30 today, took it easy with his fourth ebraight victory in the Tour just about clinched. Only an accident can beat him. His overall time is 98 hours 7 minutes 25 seconds, a 10 minute 3 second advantage over second-place Raymond Poulidor of France.

Guimard, suffering from acute tendonitis in both legs, abandon-ed just after the 89 surviving riders set out from Vescul, near MANCHESTER, England, July 21 (UPI).— Soccer star George Best, who had out the sport two months ago, was reinstated today by Manchester United and received the maximum punishment allowed from the English soccer club.

Manchester United suspended Best for two weeks starting Monday and imposed certain restrictions on him to try to prevent a recurrence of the situation which caused Best to quit on May 20 because "mentally and physically I am a bloody wreck."

Toe suspension, the maximum possible under British Football Association laws, will cost Best about £400 in lost wages and cause him to miss United's pre-season tour matches, in Copenhagen on Aug. 2 and in West Berlin oo Aug. 5.

New 'Digs' for Best

The 26-year-old unmarried Irishman also was ordered to move out of his $20,000 house and into "digs" at the home of Manchester United's Fouth coach Paddy Crerand.

Manager Frank O'Farrell said he hoped tha move will help Best "establish regular sleeplog and living habits. George accepts that he has

Best Is Disciplined by Manchester United been guilty of a breach of contract and that, in taking these steps, we are trying to be constructive and give him some support."

He said he hadn't "the fogglest idea" if the move would work. "George is unpredictable, but I am very optimistic and I think being a little more naticot for a little bit longer will see an end to all these problems," O'Farrell said.

Spanish Holiday

Best had refused to play for Northern Ireland in the British championships at the end of May and went to Spain instead for a vacation. Then he announced, in a Sunday Mirror newspaper article that he was quitting soccer and failed to turn up for Manchester United's exhibition match in Tel Aviv.

Early in June, Best told O'Forrell that he had reconsidered and wanted to play soccer again. He has been working out voluntarily.

It was the third time in little more than a year that Best has been disciplined. He was fined two weeks salary and moved into temporary lodging in January after missing training for a week, and last year failed to report for training because of alleged "romantic" problems.

El Tiempo Shut; 2d Biggest Paper In Spanish in U.S.

NEW YORK, July 21 (NYT),-El Tiempo, the nation's secondlargest Spanish-language daily newspaper, was declared bank-rupt and ordered closed by a federal judge yesterday after nine profitless years of publication here.

The paper had filed a hankruptcy petition in April. 1971, under special arrangements that enabled it to continue publishing while trying to repay $867.490 m liabilities accumulated since Its founding in 1963.

But the effort to stabilize El Tiempo financially and to attract new investment falled, and U.S. Judge Asa S. Herzog, a referee in bankruptcy, ordered the paper closed. It bad more than $1 mil-Iton in debts.

Shortly after the order was issued. Einar M. Petersen. president and publisher, met with the paper's 80 editorial and business employees in El Tiempos offices to announce the decision.

Mr. Peterson told them he plans to continue to seek investments and said he will make an cliort to open another Spanishlanguage newspaper in the fall. El Tiempo, with a circulation of York's El Diario-La Prensa's "And no bumper stickers on 70,000 among Spanish-language the headboard," Stanislaus said, newspapers in the country.

Mankiewicz who was sitting in a trailer tucked off in a corner of Pinewood Studios, where he is directing the film version of "Sleutb." "If you bave to hang a motto over your desk, that's not a bad one." Mr. Mankicwicz hos a face that is both attractively disabused and mischievous, and he wears baby blue socks. "My father once bung a motto over my desk. 'Alas, the fleeting moments.' That one turned out to be true."

One of the sharpest and wittiest of film-makers, creator of "All About Eve," "The Barefoot Contessa" and "A Letter to Three Wives," among others. Joe Mankiewicz is especially admired hy French critics who adore his verbal skill ("not only does be write scintillating dialogue but he uses words as a dramatic instrument") and who think that even "Cleopatra" ("cette oenere magistrale") will become a classic. Mr. Mankiewicz has made many films since he started in 1929: one that he wishes he had made he

Parts of this world appeared of course in "The Barefoot Contessa" which Mr. Mankiewicz regards as a failure. "I wanted to do it as a Holly-wood fairy tale. The Cinderella tale—I've known and been in love with those Cinderellas and the prince always turns out to be a fairy or impotent in some

Mr. Manklewicz is adapting a Dürrennatt play for Broadway. A theater buff, he once wanted to write a play about the other two people in a Noel Coward play: "You take two people who commit the grotesque error of falling in love. Mr. Mankiewicz lives in Bedford Village, New York, but feels very happy about working in England and was even a little sentimental about it, his 6-rear-old daughter having just made her debut in a school play in London, "Among the comforting things that still exist in England is the little girl's school. PEOPLE:

Taking a leaf, perhaps, from the notebook of temperamental chess challenger Bobby Fischer, American entertainer Jerry Lewis walked off the stage in midperformance Thursday night at the Monte Carlo opera house, complaining bitterly about bad light-ing, incompetent stage hands and. get this, "the disturbing noise of the television cameras." Front row center for the performance were the Monegasque royal family, Prince Rainier, Princess Grace and their three children. They, along with the rest of the audience, left after seeing 40 minutes of a scheduled two-and-a-half hour show and three-quarters of an hoor looking at an empty stage. Lewis was scheduled for another "performance" Saturday

Meanwhile, in another spot in Monte Carlo, Frank Sinatra, secording to an American student caused a ruckus in Jimmy's nightclub. The report, from UPI, says John Ehall, 22, of Hollywood, said he has filed assault charges against Sinatra. He said he was assaulted by the entertainer and a bodyguard after he took photographs of his own friends at their table early Thursday morning. He said Sinatra had been behaving m an overexcited manner and when Sinatra saw the camera he approached Rhall and twisted his arm, demanding to know if he was a newsman. "Sinatra broke my Cartier watch" and tore my shirt, I told him if be wanted the camera that bad he could have it," Rhall said. He said Sinatra threw the camera into the sea and then, with companions, followed Rhall to his hotel room. Other reports, still according to UPI, said Smatra had been throwing firecrackers under the seats of nightclub neighbors and that he had been in a fight with Kim D'Extainville, husband of Hélène Rochas of the perfume family who was also present, Still another report still according to UPT, had Sinatra badly beaten after one of his firecrackers exploded on a table. This version says four men at that table attacked Sinatra and a friend. The four men were at the table with Maria Gabriella Balkany, daughter of the former Italian king Umberto, and the sister of Italian industrialist Gianni Agnelli.
